Dear Colleagues,

It is our pleasure to welcome you to the 2014 Fall Conference for Community Foundations.

The world's first community foundation was founded right here in Cleveland 100 years ago. Since then, the Cleveland Foundation has shown the world how community collaboration can unite local resources around important priorities and common causes. This centennial-year gathering provides an important opportunity for the entire field to reflect on how far place-based giving has come and craft the future of the field – together as one philanthropic community.

With sound guidance from the 2014 Fall Conference for Community Foundations Advisory Group, we have put together a stellar conference experience that builds on two significant bodies of work: conversations on place-based philanthropy started at last year's Fall Conference and extensive research on the future of community philanthropy, sponsored by the Council and conducted by the Monitor Institute, a part of Deloitte Consulting LLP. In addition, the Council received more than 500 submissions through its "Call for Ideas" request, resulting in content development that responds to the current issues facing philanthropic leaders.

At this year's conference, foundation leaders will have an opportunity to observe philanthropy in action. Attendees will discover new ideas, connect with colleagues, and learn new techniques to help meet today's toughest challenges. Moreover, attendees will focus on individual, organizational, and sector-wide effectiveness. Together, we will shape the future of place-based philanthropy.

As we honor the storied past of community foundations and look to the remarkable future ahead, we are grateful for your participation in the 2014 Fall Conference. Community foundations play a vital role in shaping and advancing the entire field, in large part because of your "on the ground, real-time, and real life" expertise. By responding thoughtfully to the needs of those around you, community foundations have been at the forefront of making our society a better place to live.

By joining us in Cleveland, you will enhance your ability to foster innovative ideas and strategic partnerships. You will also receive important tools to help you build for the next 100 years!

YOUR LEARNING EXPERIENCE AT THE 2014 FALL CONFERENCE

The 2014 Fall Conference for Community Foundations is the culmination of a year of celebrating the impact of the first century of community philanthropy and a concept that has spread around the globe. This October gathering builds upon two important bodies of work: the conversations on place-based philanthropy that began at last Fall's conference and the extensive research sponsored by the Council and conducted by the Monitor Institute on the future of community philanthropy. In addition, conference content has been built in response to the challenges and needs you shared with the Council through the "Call for Ideas" request. We heard your desire to discuss NextGen donors, donor engagement, race and equity, technology, disaster relief, rural philanthropy, mergers and acquisitions, community leadership and more.

INDIVIDUAL EXCELLENCE - MONDAY, OCTOBER 20

The Fall Conference provides time for reflection on the last century of community foundation leadership through a plenary discussion with trailblazers at the forefront of the community foundation movement. From their historical perspective of the unique qualifications of community foundations to their perceptions of the current challenges facing this sector, we will pay homage to the groundwork that has been laid for the field. Additionally, this session will unveil results of the Community Foundation Global Online Atlas research – the first comprehensive atlas of the international community foundation movement.

During the first day, you can enhance your individual, professional excellence with breakout sessions specific to your organizational role in your foundation. Explore topics such as development and finance collaboration, investment strategy, media deserts or take a deep dive into Giving Days and online giving campaigns.

ORGANIZATIONAL EXCELLENCE - TUESDAY, OCTOBER 21

Focusing on organizational excellence, this day of the conference will explore ways to improve the capacities of our organizations in order to play a more impactful role in assisting communities. Discover the latest developments of the What's Next for Community Philanthropy Research of the Monitor Institute and challenge your assumptions of your foundation's evolving role in the community it serves. Learn from and share insights with your international peers while participating in breakfast sessions on youth philanthropy, board management, #CF100 stories and more! Additionally, witness 'philanthropy-at-work' by joining a Cleveland site session.

COMMUNITY PHILANTHROPY EXCELLENCE - WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 22

Engage in a plenary discussion on the 2nd century of community philanthropy excellence. Deliberate on where the field is headed, and ways to pursue innovative ways of fulfilling the mission of Community Foundations. Breakout sessions will include public-private-partnership collaboration, visions for national service and leadership diversity, and more. End your learning journey with us as we embrace change and re-ignite the passion behind the work of community philanthropy.

Prepare to be inspired as we anticipate the next 100 years through the creative exploration of new ideas and bold approaches. And, of course, you will have opportunities to enhance your professional skills, make new friends, connect with colleagues, and experience fresh learning formats in our new 'Know & Go' sessions, in addition to deep dive and site sessions.

Plenary

The Fall Conference offers 5 plenary sessions featuring some of the industry's most innovative speakers and topics. All conference attendees are invited to attend these sessions and experience their message simultaneously.

KNOW & GO SESSIONS COME IN THREE TYPES:

Flash Talk

These Ignite™-style presentations tell personal and professional stories of success, achievement, failures, passion and more. It's exactly five minutes long with exactly 20 slides.

FRED Talk

Named after Frederick H. Goff, founder of the Cleveland Foundation and the forefather of community foundations, these presentations showcase ideas in 20 minutes or less and focus on innovative thinking and new approaches to challenges.

Peer Share

Why reinvent the wheel when a colleague may have a solution, an idea or a resource you can adopt? These 15-minute sessions provide time for a peer presented overview of a model, project or initiative and why it has been successful.

TROLLEY BOARDING BEGINS AT 1:30 P.M. • DEPARTURE IS SCHEDULED FOR 1:45 P.M.

A Changing Landscape: Access, Research and the Future of Health Care

Cleveland, renowned for its cutting-edge health care infrastructure, is not immune from the rapid changes that are affecting every sector of the industry. Unique programs and partnerships are addressing the changing environment from every angle, including early-career training, local workforce support through provider education, unique health access initiatives, and industry-leading research innovations. On this site session, you will gain an understanding of Cleveland's most innovative and iconic public health organizations and programs while connecting with thought-leaders who are changing the way medical research and education are delivered.

From Vision to Transformation: How the Arts Can Drive Community Change

A social-justice-focused progressive theater, a contemporary art museum, and a major entertainment and theater complex have each been the visionary and the catalyst for the unlikely, but now commonplace partnerships and collaborations that are changing the face of Cleveland. The Cleveland Public Theater, the Gordon Square Arts District, the Museum of Contemporary Art, and the historic downtown PlayhouseSquare theatre district have led the transformation of the physical appearance, economic heart, and lifeblood vibrancy of their formerly depressed city neighborhoods. Join us on a site session that explores how the vision, passion, persistence, and selfless commitment of the arts persuaded and brokered partnerships across community sectors to bring together the diversity of partners needed to transform their neighborhoods.

Land Use as a Connector and Economic Driver

Like many urban centers and industrial towns, Cleveland has been challenged in recent decades by drastic population declines and a surplus of vacant urban land. The great recession and foreclosure crisis have exacerbated the problem and restricted resources available to address urban blight. In Cleveland, public and private entities have worked together to transform vacant land and promote sustainable economic development. During this site session you will see outcomes of these collaborative efforts and learn about the role philanthropy can play in the effort to creatively re-use land in order to spur economic growth.

Philanthropy's Role in Changing the Landscape of Out of School Time Programs

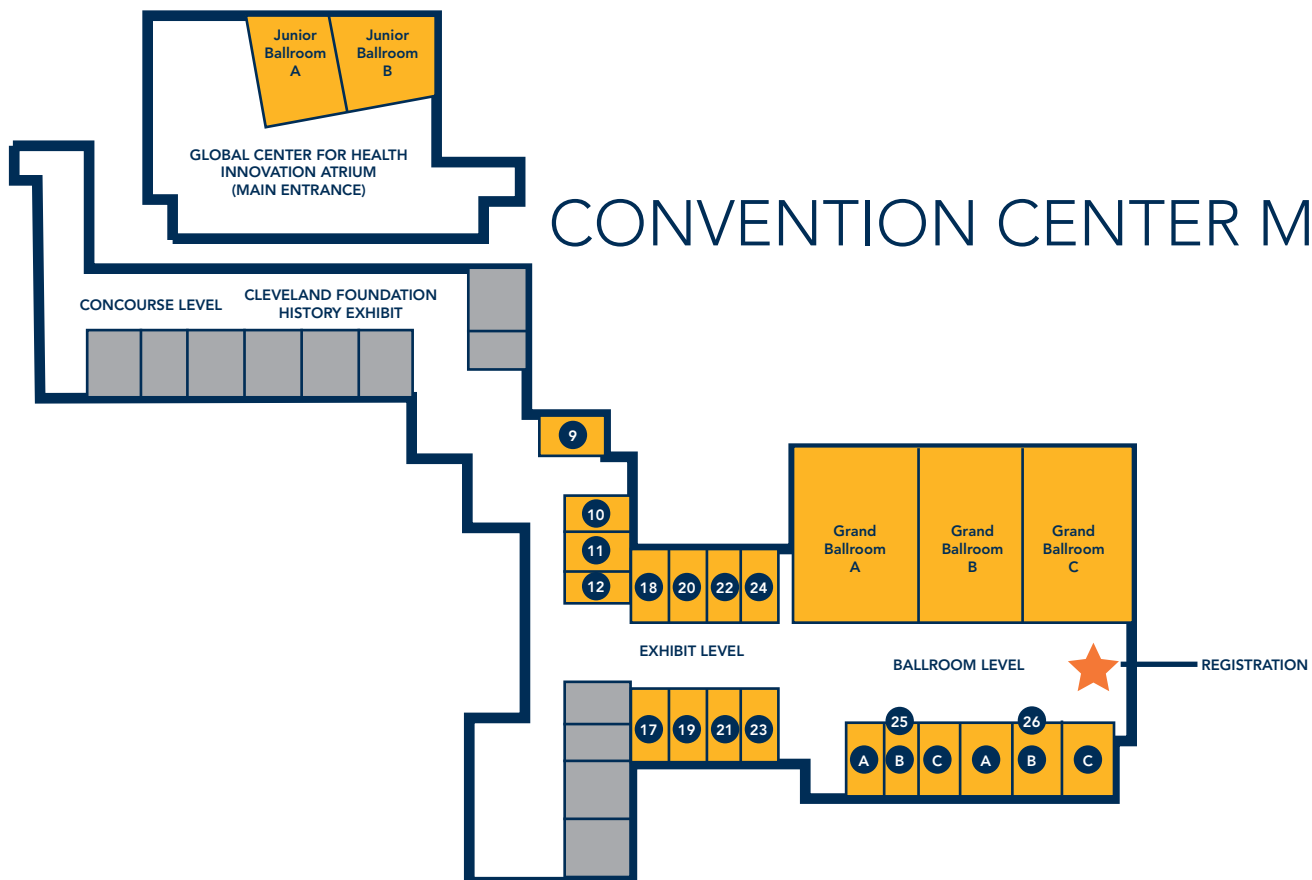

In 2008, the Cleveland Foundation and its community partners rolled out My Commitment, My Community ("MyCom"), a youth development initiative that serves children from kindergarten through college. The Out of School Time ("OST") component challenges communities across the county to address youth and families' most pressing need for access to safe, quality OST activities. In addition, a professional development component was created that infuses training, assessment tools and technical assistance to increase youth development competencies in MyCom partner agencies. Join us on this site session to see how this unique arrangement between Cuyahoga County, the Cleveland Foundation and Starting Point (an information and referral agency) has created a network throughout the community to address the need for alternate approaches to OST services.

COMMUNITY FOUNDATION ANNIVERSARIES

COMMUNITY FOUNDATIONS: SPANNING THE NATION AND THE WORLD

100 Years ago, the first community foundation was founded in 1914 in Cleveland, OH by Frederick H. Goff. Since that time, this powerful idea has spread around the nation and the world. Dedicated and supportive community leaders have continued to grow the community foundation movement in states, cities, towns, and regions. The ties that bind this world-wide movement are a strong commitment to a common mission to improve the quality of life in communities large and small. Today, we salute community foundations across the United States:
