4D Council on V• Foundations

CHAPTER 1

Introduction

The 2022 Grantmaker Salary and Benefits Report is intended to help foundation administrators and boards evaluate their policies and practices around base salaries, salary ranges, yearly increases, and benefits by comparing them to those of a large group of grantmakers. Salary data were collected for 10,304 full-time staff across 36 distinct positions; the analysis of these data builds upon the methodology and approach established in 1980.

The figures reported here are intended to serve as indicators of salary levels and benefits in the field, not as prescriptive guides. The Council on Foundations recommends that the salary tables found in Chapter 6 be used in conjunction with other nonprofit and business salary information at both the local and national levels.

Generally, administrative staff salaries are set by the local market, whereas CEO salaries are determined by the national market. Factors such as the regional cost of living and the qualifications, experience, needs, and potential of the individual are equally important in making decisions on what is fair and adequate compensation and benefits for any given case.

The 2022 report contains demographic data on 9,995 fulltime staff. The demographics captured include age, disability, gender and race/ethnicity. The Council recognizes multiple dimensions of diversity including, but not limited to:

- ethnicity
- race
- gender
- sexual orientation
- gender identity
- age
- economic circumstance
- class
- disability
- geography
- philosophy

This report examines the subset of these diversity demographics most often captured by employers. The Council remains committed to collecting the data that best captures the demographics of the talent pool and that best moves conversations forward on diversity, equity, and inclusion within our field.

Methodology and Respondents

In March 2022, an invitation to participate in the 2022 Grantmaker Salary and Benefits Survey was sent to private, community, corporate, public, and operating foundations as well as other grantmakers. Recipients included Council on Foundation members and nonmembers, including previous participants and eligible organizations identified through the support of the United Philanthropy Forum.

Survey participants were asked to provide base salary information as of February 1, 2022, for full-time staff members representing 36 paid professional and administrative positions. In addition to demographic information, respondents were also surveyed on their position tenure and number of years employed by the foundation. Respondents were also surveyed on their organizations' salary administration, CEO discretionary grantmaking policy, and employee and retiree benefits.

Respondents were surveyed on their board compensation practices and their administrative and program expenses. This information was published in separate reports.

Changes to the Survey

Questions regarding board demographics and compensation were once again included in the 2022 survey. Due to the unlikely potential for dramatic shifts among board composition and payment, these questions are asked less frequently in order the reduce the effort required to complete the survey; the last time these data were collected was 2019.

In partnership with Disability & Philanthropy Forum, the definition for Disability was updated this year, to the following: "People with disabilities include those who have long-term or recurring physical, mental, intellectual, sensory, or chronic health conditions which impact their daily lives and ability to participate in society."

Last year, the survey and report included "non-binary" as response option when indicating the gender of the full-time staff members in one of the 36 roles for which salary data is requested.

No new positions were added as options for full-time staff salary reporting this year. In 2017, "Director of Impact Investing" was added; the previous position added to the survey was General Counsel, added to the 2014 version of the survey instrument.

This year the largest foundations by assets (those with $2 billion or more) were further disaggregated into two groups: $$ 2$ billion to $$ 4.99$ billion and $$ 5$ billion or more. These groups are shown when possible, though most tables do not include this level of specificity based on the number of responding organizations. The last change was in 2013 when the highest assets group became $$ 2$ billion or more (formerly $$ 1$ billion or more).

Online Participation

All respondents took the survey online. Our web-based platform is enabled by Peerfocus, which allows survey participants to benchmark their salary data against their peers by grantmaker type, asset size, and geography. In 2018, a report enabling users to benchmark the prevalence and cost of select benefits was added to the platform. Customized benchmarking reports are available at the Benchmark Central website at no cost to survey participants.

Combined Survey Data

Of the 1,003 respondents, 366 are community foundations, 492 are private (family or independent), 91 are public, and 21 are grantmaking operating foundations; 17 are "other" unclassified organizations. Fourteen corporate grantmakers also participated. Table 1.1 compares the respondents for 2022, 2021, and 2020.

Survey participants for 2022 held assets totaling almost $$ 384$ billion and disbursed almost $$ 20$ billion in grants in fiscal year 2022.

Of the 1,003 surveyed respondents (an increase of over 5\% from the 952 participants in 2021), 978 organizations provided salary information for full-time personnel with reported base salaries for a total of 10,304 staff members, which is five percent more than were reported in $2021(9,787)$. The majority of this report focuses on the data related to these 10,304 fulltime paid staff.

Council members account for 27 percent of those that provided 2022 data. 33\% of the Council's membership participated in the survey.

Report Format and Definitions

The 2022 Grantmaker Salary and Benefits Report is a resource for those who oversee or manage a philanthropic foundation or similar grantmaking program with paid staff. Of primary interest are the tables of full-time staff salary data by grantmaker type, asset group, and region. These tables are indexed on pages 200-412.

While this report contains data from 1,003 active foundations and giving programs, it cannot be considered a random sample of all grantmakers.

Listed below are certain phrases and conventions used throughout the text and tables.

Grantmaker Types ${ }^{1}$

In most tables, grantmaking organizations are grouped by type. Wherever possible, separate data is reported for each recognized type of grantmaker.

- Community foundations exist primarily to provide charitable support to a specific geographic area, ranging from a small town to a large region. They receive funds from a variety of sources. Classified by the tax code as public charities, they must pass the public support test.
- Corporate or "company-sponsored" foundations are private foundations organized by for-profit businesses. Although corporate foundations are subject to the same regulations as private foundations, their governing boards usually consist of corporate employees. Although some have endowments that provide grant funds, annual grantmaking is usually derived from corporate contributions instead of endowment income.
- Corporate giving programs are not organized as foundations. They make grants directly to nonprofits from funds budgeted by the parent corporation. Staff members are corporate employees acting in either a part-time or full-time capacity.
- Family foundations are private foundations in which the donor or donors' family plays a significant role in governing the foundations. (In Council studies, organizations self-select this designation.)

[^0]- Independent foundations are private foundations with endowments that provide resources for grantmaking to charitable organizations. The endowments usually are gifts from one donor, either an individual or a family. Private foundations in which the donor or donor's relatives play a significant role in governing the foundation are often referred to as family foundations (see above).
- Operating foundations are tax-exempt organizations that use the bulk of their resources to provide charitable services or run charitable programs on their own. They make few, if any, grants to outside organizations and like private independent and private family foundations, they generally do not raise funds from the public. ${ }^{2}$
- Private foundations, when used as a category in this report, is an aggregate of family and independent foundations. Although operating and some corporate foundations are also legally considered private foundations, in this report they are presented separately and are not included under this category.
- Public foundations, like community foundations, are classified as public charities and must pass the public support test. Instead of supporting the broad needs of a defined geographic area, public foundations focus on specific interests or charitable activities.
- Other grantmakers include programs or organizations that do not fall under any of the above categories, such as federated and other institutional giving programs. For example, social venture philanthropy, collective giving, United Way organizations, and federations all fall outside of the listed categories and would be considered "other."

Asset Groups

Salary data for grantmakers are grouped according to the fair market value of the foundation's assets at the end of the 2020 fiscal year, as reported by the respondents. This format was developed in response to Council members' requests for more detailed information on both larger and smaller foundations. Asset groups have remained relatively consistent across years, with the exception of the addition of a higher asset grouping of $$ 5$ billion dollars and above this year. The last change was in 2013 when the highest assets group became $$ 2$ billion or more. These groups are included when possible, though most tables do not have this level of disaggregation.

Grants Groups

Because most corporate grantmakers (foundations and giving programs) do not rely upon assets to generate grants, but rely on funds allocated by the corporation each year, corporate foundations and giving programs are grouped according to their level of grant activity.

Regions

To show variations in salaries across the country, the Council uses U.S. Census Bureau groupings. In most cases, data are presented by the four Census regions, and in some cases, respondents are further grouped by the nine Census divisions.

Staff Size

Data in some tables are grouped by staff size. It is important to note that grantmaking public charities (community and public foundations) are more likely than their counterparts to have programs and services in addition to their grantmaking. This may account for higher mean staff sizes in some asset groupings and greater increases and decreases in staff size from year to year as programs are added or eliminated.

Full- and Part-Time Status

Questions on the survey are alternately asked of full- and part-time staff. While most benefits questions are asked about all staff, many of the items about chief executives, salaries, and demographics are targeted toward full-time employees. For consistency among reported staff, we ask that the respondents working 30 hours or more during a standard work week be considered "full-time." This is an attempt to normalize the compensation for duties performed. Actual time worked will vary; to get a better sense of that variance, we asked respondents to report their standard work week. The median work week reported was 40 hours, with a mean value of 39 hours. For more information on grantmaker-designated workweek length, see Table 1.4.

Positions

The 2022 survey collected data on full-time employees for 36 of the most common professional and administrative positions in grantmaking organizations. The list of positions has grown and changed over time to reflect changes in the field.

Average, Range, and (N)umber

The Council uses two measures of central tendency or "average"-the mean and the median.

- The mean is the sum of all values divided by the number of observations. Because the mean is sensitive to the skewing of a distribution-that is, the degree of asymmetry comparative to the distribution's midpointthe addition of a single outlying value can subject it to considerable change.
- The median is the middle value in a sequence. When there is an even number of values in an array, the median is the average of the two middle values. Because the median is not affected by the magnitude of an outlying value, only by whether the outlier is greater than or less than the central value, it is often favored by statisticians over the mean. This is particularly true for distributions containing several outliers but whose central values are more uniformly distributed. Wherever possible, the median figure is used here. ${ }^{3}$

This report usually lists the median as it can provide a better measure of central tendency in groups containing outlying values. In many cases, the mean is also provided.

Some tables also include the minimum values, $25^{\text {th }}$ percentile, and $75^{\text {th }}$ percentile, and maximum values of responses. We require a minimum of seven respondents to report all five values in compliance with the U.S. Department of Justice regulations for information confidentiality.

Number, or " $N$," is used to denote the number of responses to a particular question. The total number of responses can differ from question to question within a topic depending upon the number of respondents that answered each question.

Tables

Much of the data gathered in 2022 are reported in tables by asset group and grantmaker type. Whenever possible, tables include the minimum and maximum values of responses. To maintain confidentiality, compensation or discretionary grantmaking ranges (minimum and maximum) and the $25^{\text {th }}$ and 75th percentiles are given only where there were seven or more reporting organizations; ranges (minimum and maximum) are only given when there are 5 or more reporting organizations; and mean and median figures are given only where there were three or more reporting organizations.

CHAPTER 1: Introduction

No data are provided where figures were reported by only one or two organizations. Where data are omitted for these reasons or where there are no data, an asterisk appears in the appropriate section of the table.

Using these guidelines, we have striven to provide the most comprehensive and accurate data from the survey for use. As such, asset groups were condensed through a customized process by reviewing each table to provide the greatest possible level of reporting without compromising the data ranges and interpretations.

${ }^{1}$ Not all respondents reported number of staff.
${ }^{2}$ Staffing totals as of $1 / 1 / 2022$.
${ }^{3}$ Corporate grantmakers are grouped by reported grant dollars.
Includes respondents reporting having full- or part-time staff. Percentages may not total 100.0 because of rounding. Grantmaking public charities (community and public foundations) are more likely than their private counterparts to have programs and services in addition to their grantmaking. This may account for higher mean staff sizes in some asset groupings and for greater increases and decreases in staff size from year to year as programs are added or dropped.

Position Summaries

Chief Executive Officer (CEO)/President

This position is responsible for directing the overall staff, program, and administrative activities of the organization. S/he works closely with the board to develop the organization's vision and strategies and is responsible for the organization's effective use of financial and human resources. This position may also be called Executive Director, Administrator, or other titles. For small-staffed (i.e. five or fewer staff) foundations, this is the top staff position. For corporate grantmakers, this position is often referred to as Chief Giving Officer (CGO).

Chief Executive Officer (CEO)/President

This position is responsible for directing the overall staff, program, and administrative activities of the organization. S/he works closely with the board to develop the organization's vision and strategies and is responsible for the organization's effective use of financial and human resources. This position may also be called Executive Director, Administrator, or other titles. For small staffed (i.e. five or fewer staff) foundations, this is the top staff position. For corporate grantmakers, this position is often referred to as Chief Giving Officer (CGO).

4. Council on Foundations

[^0]:    1 Tribal philanthropy-philanthropic programs that may be funded privately, or created or sponsored by a tribal government-was removed as a grantmaker type option in 2018 due to the fact that no respondents have self-identified as such since being added as an option in 2011.

[^1]:    2 Between 1997 and 2010, the Council stopped collecting compensation information from private operating foundations. In 2011, the Council resumed fielding the survey to these organizations.

[^2]:    3 Care should be taken in the interpretation of the median values reported. In some cases, a certain category may contain a small number of respondents. The dynamic nature of these smaller samples-and, therefore, of their medians relative to those of larger, more stable samplesmust be considered.
